It must be said in the outset, Marcus Garvey has a large following here, if we are to judge from the crowds that attend his meetings each night and the enhis meetings each night and the enhis meetings cach night and the continuous of humanity. He is a native of the continuous and in physical appearance, strikingly resembles our late friend, former Chief Grand Mentor C. E. W. Day, of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor. He is intelligent and possesses all the characteristics of a real fighter. Mr. Garvery has been successful in attracting some very able persons to his support, but the great persons to his support, but the great majority of his New York audiences seem to be made up of people from the West Indies, which make up a very
